Bully Vigilance 22

SENIOR AIRMAN CHINA SHOCK,
MINOT AIR FORCE BASE PUBLIC AFFAIRS

MINOT AIR FORCE BASE, N.D. --

The 91st Missile Wing conducted an exercise simulating the retaking of an intercontinental ballistic missile launch facility, Oct. 13, 2022. The exercise, called Bully Vigilance 22-2, involved over 500 defenders from the 91st Security Forces Group and 91st Missile Wing Inspector General Office.

"BV 22-2 was a weeklong exercise designed to test the 91st Missile Wing's ability to conduct readiness operations and protect our national defense assets, with the goal of evaluating areas to further improve the Wing's nuclear readiness and strategic deterrence capabilities," said Tech. Sgt. Corey Wood, Non-Commissioned Officer in Charge of Wing Inspections and Exercises.

The moment the simulated takeover was initiated, defenders from all squadrons in the security forces group were recalled to the base to arm up and prepare to retake the facility.

"The exercise was a good test of my leadership abilities for several reasons," said Tech. Sgt. Elias Aggen, a 91st Security Forces Group defender. "It kicked off during changeover for the missile complex, so we were trying to communicate between two different squadrons, the Missile Alert Facilities (MAFs) and other alert teams involved."

Aggen and his team of defenders had to assault approximately 800 meters of open terrain during abnormally strong winds, topping out at gusts of over 50 knots per hour.

A Defender from the 91st Security Forces Group provides cover during Bully Vigilance, an exercise designed to test the 91st Missile Wing's readiness to respond to an outside threat at Minot Air Force Base, North Dakota, Oct. 13, 2022. Exercises like BV provide training opportunities for components, units and task forces to deter, and if necessary, defeat, a military attack against the United States and to employ forces as directed by the President.

"It was definitely a challenge trying to direct forces in that wind," said Aggen. Members from the 791st Missile Security Forces Squadron and 91st Missile Security Forces Squadron were first on the scene, with the objective of securing the immediate area around the facility, allowing the other defenders safe entry. "It's not everyday that you're put into a situation to lead others, especially those you don't work with everyday," said Airman 1st Class Taylor Hendrickson, a 91st Security Forces Group defender. "But by falling back on all of the tools and tactics I have been taught during training and the mentorship of my senior leaders, the responding units and I were able to successfully execute the mission."

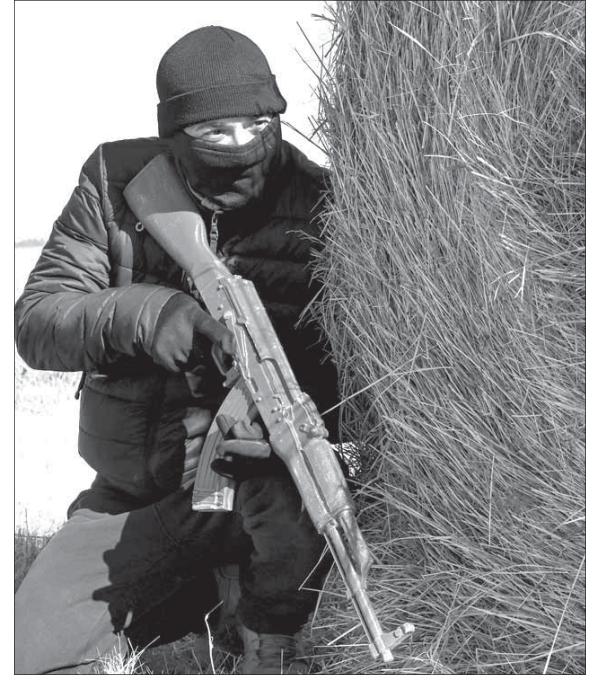

After neutralizing the simulated threats, the defenders reviewed their performance of the exercise and how they can improve in the future.

"The defenders of the 91 SFG showcased their dedication to providing security to our nation's most vital assets," said Wood.

The 91st Missile Wing operates 24 hours a day, 365 days a year, maintaining and defending 150 Intercontinental Ballistic Missile Launch Facilities and 15 Missile Alert Facilities spanning 8,500 square miles. The Wing's commitment to one of the most important missions in the Department of Defense provides the nation with a combat-ready nuclear force deterring adversaries across the globe.

Chanhassen, Just Down The Road

As a lifestyle reporter I am in constant search of those extraordinary events, and my recent trip to Minneapolis and Chanhassen Dinner Theater gave me a chance to see their production of Footloose. You can consider Chanhassen a part of the twin cities, but it is really a small town located on the Southeast corner of the Minneapolis Metro. Chanhassen has hosted dinner theaters of famous Broadway productions for over 30 years. Fiddler on the Roof, Mama Mia, and The Music Man, just to name a few, have all played on the Chanhassen stage. The trip to Minneapolis is about eight hours, give or take, and Minneapolis is also home to The Mall Of America, so there is lots to do besides Chanhassen.

Your evening starts out with a chance to order appetizers and adult drinks if you wish. Then you'll be treated to your side salad and fresh dinner rolls.

There is a varied menu, but for our money, the Chicken Chanhassen is first on the list. There are steaks and pasta dishes available also, but the Chicken Chanhassen seems to be the favorite of most dinner theater customers.

The musical performance, well we have always walked away with a "boy, was that the best one yet?" conversation. The evening will finish at about 10:30 p.m., and you will be back on the road to your hotel within 15 minutes.

Footloose, The Musical, will be on the Chanhassen stage through February, so there is plenty of time to book a weekend highlighted by the dinner theater performance at Chanhassen.

Most evening performances include dinner, but some matinees are performance only.

Go online at chanhassendt.com, and you will notice that there is a military discount option on all tickets.

AND TALKING THEATER

The Mouse River Players will feature the comedy Little Women. Dates for the show are November 18-10 and 25-27. Tickets are available at mouseriverplayers.com.

THIS WEEK'S BEST KEPT SECRET

I just can't hold back any longer. I have been a fan of knoephla soup since I was a kid. Yep, it's truly a German tradition. Without spoiling the secret, it is named after the hand-cut pieces of dough that are added to a basic cream-based soup. Oh, there are other ingredients like onions and potatoes, but the kneophla truly makes the soup. Well, Jamaican Vybz has Knoephla soup and they add a bit of Jamaican Jerk. Just enough of a bite to make it exciting. Located in the Main Medical building, give their knoephla soup a try on a cold fall day.

POTATO KLUB

Not going to give you the recipe for Potato Klub, only going to give you a hint that Christ Lutheran church has some left over from Norsk Hostfest. Again, worth a try. Call the church office for details.

THIS WEEK'S CHUCKLE

Everyone should have two pets in order to maintain perspective: A dog who will always think you're the greatest, and a cat who will always hold you in disdain.

MARVIN BAKER

Most of us know about LaMoure because we've either been there or we're familiar with Lobos sports teams, namely football and volleyball, in recent state tournaments.

LaMoure is just like any other small-town county seat in North Dakota. Its economy is based on farming. In fact, R.D. Offutt, synonymous with John Deere, got its start in Lisbon and LaMoure in the late '70s. LaMoure has a good school system, a strong Main Street and other attractions like nearby Lake LaMoure and it's about 100 miles southwest of Fargo.

But LaMoure has another... I'm not sure you'd call it an attraction... but it's definitely obvious as you come into town from either direction on N.D. Highway 13.

Not for tourists, it's the Navy's 1,200-foot Omega Tower. This tower has baffled a lot of people, including some who live in LaMoure County. Why would the Navy operate a communications tower in the middle of the country in landlocked LaMoure, North Dakota?

Right out of high school in the late '70s and early '80s, I lived in nearby Edgeley and dated a couple of girls from LaMoure. I found out back then the tower was owned by the Coast Guard and was a relay point for communication between both oceans.

When GPS became fully operational, it made Omega obsolete and the tower was shut down in 1997. The Navy re-opened it in 2011 as a communications link to submarines. According to Navy public affairs, Omega transmits a low frequency radio signal that can penetrate solid rock and reach deep into either ocean, making it ideal for subsurface communication.

When the tower was built in the late '60s, it brought numerous military families to LaMoure. By 1979, when I moved to Edgeley for a job, the tower location had six military personnel operating the facility. Today, the Navy contracts with civilian employees who operate it.

If you look around the state, there are plenty of TV, radio and cellular towers that reach 1,200 feet in the sky. And when you drive past the Omega Tower just west of LaMoure, it looks like any other radio or TV tower, except for maybe the fence around the grounds.

The tower, and its presence in this southeast North Dakota community, has had a lasting impact on LaMoure itself. Most notably is the Omega Plaza in downtown LaMoure. Yes, it's one of the smallest communities in the state with a shopping center and its namesake comes from the tower.

There's also the Omega Motel and the "Omega Room" in one of the local restaurants.

That's about the extent of it. The residents and city leaders of LaMoure were savvy enough to not over do the "Omega" designation. Some communities will take a unique opportunity like this and completely blow it out of proportion. For all intents and purposes, LaMoure hasn't done that.

LaMoure is in the James River Valley, approximately 65 miles to the southeast of Jamestown, 20 miles east of Edgeley and 30 miles southwest of Lisbon. The tower itself, also sits in the James River Valley, so just imagine this tower communicating to the depths of the Pacific Ocean as you drive out of the valley east or west.

Consider this as well. The Omega Tower is 1,515 nautical miles from San Francisco Bay and it's 3,200 nautical miles from Hawaii. And we have trouble here in western North Dakota getting KFGO radio in Fargo, about 300 miles to our southeast.

The Omega Tower is really an interesting little place, and it's little geographically, probably less than an acre, but it's quite strategic and is an effective communications tool for the U.S. military.

So if you're ever in that neighborhood, take a look and marvel at what the Omega Tower is and what it does. Meanwhile we'll keep our eyes on the Lobos football and volleyball teams as they work toward the 2022 state tournaments.

Cold is Relative groups asking about the best winter gear and reading boot reviews online.

But then something magical happens. Winter comes – and while no one ever really gets used to a -30° windchill, most people don't think about it nearly as much as they expected. Cold temperatures are a funny and fluctuating thing in hot dish territory. When summer finally gives way to fall, allowing temperatures to dip into the 30s for the first time, the whole town grumbles.

Heavy parkas come out. Wool socks and hats appear. Chatter shifts from noting the humidity (which doesn't actually exist) to bemoaning the frost and discussions of Almanac predictions for the months to come. Then after a few weeks, those 30° days feel balmy, the perfect temperature to break out your ankle cropped jeans. Coats are reserved for really cold days – with highs in the teens. But winter is long in Minot. Soon even those temperatures don't feel so bad. So you save your heavy coat for the really, really cold days. This cycle continues until you find yourself wearing a sweatshirt to preschool drop off on a morning with a -35° windchill.

I know this is true, because it happens to me every year. I know this is true, because it's not just me. I see other moms shuffling well-bundled kids across parking lots and scuttling from car to door – I see them wearing their fleece pullovers. I see them all winter long.

Is it laziness? Is it that the novelty of a heavy coat wears off as the cold months drag on? Is it the discomfort of driving in a parka? Or that if you wear a coat to Target, you'll just want to take it off as soon as you're inside? My reason is that I'm usually sweaty, cranky and running late by the time I've got my kids bundled up. I'm so eager to get going I don't bother with anything heavier than a small puffer jacket. Then I justify my decision by thinking, "I'm only going from the house to the car, anyway."

Whatever the reason, it happens. Even to those who swear it never will.

Then, one happy day, the thermometer will read 45°. We all – locals and transplants alike – go out and bask in the sun, declaring it "T-shirt weather." A few weeks later, when the high is 60°, you can find me upending my drawers to find a tank top – summer has arrived!

Up here, cold is relative. The definition of "cold" is constantly shifting. We all acclimate. Even the transplants.

So here's some friendly advice. Buy the good winter gear, but know it may hang in your closet unused, acting as a security blanket. It'll be nice to know you could wear it – if you wanted. It'll be nice to have it for playing in the snow or skiing. But your favorite winter coat will be the one that is light and comfortable. It'll be the one you zip up on that first frosty morning in October. It'll be the one you wear through all the cold days until the grass starts to grow again in the spring. If you have that jacket, glove liners, and a couple good sweatshirts, you'll be fine.

Just give it a little time. Give it a chance. No matter where you come from, in time you too, will justify wearing only a sherpa sweatshirt to preschool drop off with the logic, "I'll only be out of the car for a second or two."

Do you have an observation that is uniquely Dakotan or Minot? I'd love to hear from you. Reach me on Instagram @amy_allender or by email at amyallender@gmail.com.

remains slow although some continued catfish success with limited angler numbers. East end of Lake Sakakawea producing scattered walleye activity but limited anglers. Better success remains west around Beaver or Beulah bays. Fewer salmon anglers, as well.

- Lake Sakakawea/northwest N.D. lakes, Scenic Sports, Williston: Missouri and Yellowstone rivers producing nice walleye success prior to weather front moving through early in the week. Upper end of Lake Sakakawea producing walleye, as well, from Van Hook Arm to the west but limited activity with hunting underway.

- Lonetree WMA area lakes, Harvey: No activity on area lakes.

- North-central/central N.D. lakes, Towner Hdwe. Hank, Towner: No activity.

Hunting:

- Pheasants: Generally fair to good success but some areas spotty and better than others with increasing pressure in many areas.

- Waterfowl: Pockets of waterfowl across east-central N.D. but hunting pressure moved many local birds out. Look for increasing bird movement with recent weather front. Continued fair to good waterfowl success around the Devi's Lake area with snow geese moving into northeast N.D. Not much movement yet south of Garrison Dam along the river but good snow goose numbers along areas east of the Missouri River System and central N.D. as well as northern McLean County and southern Ward County. Nice duck numbers, as well. Fair duck numbers in north-central N.D. Increasing numbers of swans and cranes moving into northwest N.D.

Airman's Attic Volunteer Recognized by American Red Cross

ERIN BEENE, NORTHERN SENTRY

On Thursday, October 20th, four members of the Chapter of Red Cross serving North Dakota made a special visit to the Minot Air Force Base Airman's Attic. The team made the trek to honor and show support for one of their most loyal and hardworking volunteers, Ana Charles, as well as to discover the unique outreach of the Airman's Attic itself. The team presented gifts to Ms. Charles as a thank-you and discussed the vast number of ways the Red Cross supports the people of Minot AFB.

Ms. Charles has served as a Red Cross volunteer for over 10 years. She is the mother of Master Sgt. Penny Valesquez, 5th Logistics Readiness Squadron, and has moved with her active duty daughter through several PCSs. Ms. Charles began serving in the Red Cross when her family faced an emergency situation. Ms. Charles said that within hours, the Red Cross had her family by her side, and it meant everything to her. Because of her experience, Ms. Charles thought it important to show her gratitude and 'pay it forward' to the organization. She has been serving military bases and communities on behalf of the Red Cross ever since. Because of her longevity of service, Jeff Kazel, Regional Director of the Service to the Armed Forces and International Services, presented Ms. Charles with a homemade Red Cross quilt. The tradition of the quilts began during World War II when quilts became a huge necessity during the raids and were of great value to soldiers on the front line. The Red Cross has kept this touching tradition alive to show their gratitude. During the refreshment portion of the afternoon, Mr. Kazel also officially asked Ms. Charles if she would serve as the Lead Volunteer for the Red Cross Chapter of Western ND. With a heartfelt smile, Ms. Charles agreed.

Ms. Charles has many skills, specifically in the medical field, that she has been able to use for the benefit of the Red Cross through the years; however, here at Minot the need for volunteers at the Airman's Attic became apparent and the Red Cross asked Ms. Charles to serve in this capacity. The Minot AFB Airman's Attic is a FREE, non-profit, self-service, thrift store open to families and AD of ranks E-6 and below for their normal hours Monday and Wednesday 5-7 p.m. and Saturday 10 a.m.-12 p.m. On the third Saturday of every month the Attic is open to all ranks, dependents and retirees too. The Attic serves as a free resource and extra benefit to those on Minot AFB. The shop is filled with a plethora of uniforms, kitchen items, clothes for both adults and kids and LOTS of other cool and interesting items - all FREE! Currently, the Attic has lots of Halloween costumes, so stop by if you need something last minute! The Attic is a project of the NCO 5/6 Club and is organized by Tech. Sgt. Chad Graham, 891st Missile Security Forces Squadron. He was unable to be in attendance for this special event due to mission requirements.

When the Red Cross team made the sincere presentation, they also discussed the purpose of the Red Cross to military bases and their history of serving the military which dates all the way back to founder Clara Barton serving as a nurse in the American Civil War. Jeff Kazel informed those present that the Red Cross does more than CPR, lifeguarding and first aid classes; they also offer resilience classes directed specifically towards the military personnel and families. They also are always looking for volunteers in a very wide range of capacities. The Red Cross likes to utilize volunteers' talents and skills to set them up in places where they can serve with pride and thrive. ## A LOOK BACK THIS WEEK IN USAF HISTORY

15TH AIR FORCE ACTIVATED IN TUNISIA

November 1, 1943

On November 1, 1943, the Fifteenth Air Force (under the United States Army Air Forces) was activated in Tunisia for the strategic bombardment of enemy targets in Europe. Maj. Gen. James H. "Jimmy" Doolittle served as the first commander, and under his charge, the Fifteenth Air Force flew its first mission of 112 B-17s and B-24s to Austria only one day after its activation. Eventually, the Fifteenth's headquarters operated out of Italy as well and gained the capability to reach targets in France, Germany, Poland, Czechoslovakia, and the Balkans. Along with the Eighth Air Force and Royal Air Force Bomber Command, the Fifteenth was a pivotal instrument used by the Allied Forces to carry the strategic air offensive to Europe. On September 15, 1945, the Fifteenth was inactivated. Recently, in August of 2020, the numbered force was reactivated with an integration of wings and resources from the Twelfth and Ninth Air Forces under Air Combat Command.

Minot isn't Minot without the Base

ERIN BEENE, NORTHERN SENTRY

Brekka Kramer, the Minot Area Chamber Economic Development Corporation (EDC) President/CEO, is a person who cares about her community and the base relationship immensely. She shared that the City of Minot and the area realize just how important Minot Air Force Base is to their town, and one of their main goals is to support the base and its leadership in any way possible. She said, "We have a lot of things we are working on to support the community, but we know that Minot isn't Minot without Minot Air Force Base. They're our friends. They're our neighbors. They're like family, and so it's a big priority of ours to ensure that we're doing everything we can to support them." Kramer talks about the Military Affairs Committee (MAC), the Honorary Commander Program and Task Force 21 when explaining exactly how the town and base build their relationship.

Brekka Kramer
President
Minot Area Chamber EDC

"Our goal is to be the best community supporting our military base," said Kramer when asked about her #relationshipgoals for the town and the base. Kramer discussed the importance of programs like the Military Affairs Committee and how it brings members of the community together to create events and support for the local Airmen and families. Additionally, when explaining the purpose of Task Force 21, Kramer said, "Task Force 21 is an activity of the Minot Area Chamber EDC that educates the local community, ND officials, members of Congress, and the public on national security issues, particularly ones that affect Minot Air Force Base, the U.S. Air Force, and our nuclear deterrent. We have members of TF21 who sit on Governor Burgum's Task Force for Military Issues in North Dakota, Air Force Global Strike Command Civic Leaders group, Air Force Global Strike Command Chief's Civic Leader group and a representative on the Secretary of the Air Force Chief's Civic Leader team." The EDC's website (<https://minotchamberedc.com/member-investors/MilitaryAffairs/taskforce-21/>) described the group as, "Comprised of 12 volunteer members who meet regularly with the ND [congressional delegation], Pentagon officials, leaders from different major commands and the numbered Air Forces... to both educate local communities, state and local officials, members of Congress, the public, and the media, while simultaneously working with the professional nuclear and defense communities around the country and in Washington to support the men and women of our nuclear forces and to devote sufficient resources to sustaining and modernizing all three legs of our nuclear triad." Additionally, the Chamber EDC is a proud supporter and participant in the Honorary Commander Program, which is a military-run program but depends on the contributions from the city to get volunteers and civic leaders to match up and be each base squadron's partner and connection to the city. Her example is that the Minot Mayor, currently Tom Ross, is always paired up with the 5th Bomb Wing Commander. Ideally, the "honorary commanders" will sort of match the role of the unit commander they are paired with. "They are putting together two people that are similar in positions, civilian and military, to work together for solutions that might involve the community," said Kramer.

Kramer reiterated that there are many levels in the way the community supports the base and they are always looking for new opportunities to show their love and loyalty to the Airmen at MAFB. "It's a great place. It's a magical community. We are all North Dakota nice, and friendly to the Air Force base. We feel like family and have a lot of respect for those who serve. There is a proud tradition of supporting Minot AFB."

Team Minot Observes Hispanic Heritage Month

AIRMAN 1ST CLASS ALEXANDER NOTTINGHAM, 5TH BOMB WING PUBLIC AFFAIRS

MINOT AIR FORCE BASE, N.D

Col. Daniel S. Hoadley, 5th Bomb Wing commander, gave remarks during a Hispanic Heritage Month closing ceremony, Oct. 14, 2022. During Hispanic Heritage Month, from Sept. 15th to Oct. 15th, Team Minot celebrated the history and culture of the U.S. Latinx and Hispanic communities.

"Team Minot's Hispanic Allies Committee does outstanding work spreading awareness of diversity not just to our Air Force community, but also the local community," said Hoadley during the closing ceremony for Hispanic Heritage month. "It is vitally important and does not go unnoticed."

During the celebration Team Minot's Hispanic Allies Committee served Hispanic food and while Airmen ate as they were entertained by a Latin mariachi singer. The event concluded with Airmen learning about Hispanic troops in history who made a difference in their community and the Armed Forces.

In the Air Force, Hispanics have played a vital role in protecting our great nation, both at home and abroad. During World War II, Carmen Contreras-Bozak, a Hispanic woman, worked endlessly in cryptology, communications and interpretation for the Women's Army Corps earning the World War II victory medal and two battle stars. Joe P. Martinez was the first Hispanic American to receive the Medal of Honor for defending Alaska during the Japanese invasion in World War II. From 1974 to 2013, Angela Salinas became the first woman to command a Marine Corps recruit station and the first Hispanic woman to become a General in the armed forces. Olga E. Custodio, who served 1980 to 2003, was the first Latina US military pilot. Olga served in the Air Force for 24 years.

The United States has been regarded as the melting pot of the world due to those diverse cultures that drove this nation's creation. That same diversity is what encourages service members to innovate and develop as professional and personal leaders.

"This celebration is about much more than great food and music. It is about the substantial contributions that Hispanic Americans make to Team Minot and our national defense - proof that diverse teams are strong teams," said Hoadley.

Magic City Equipped for Nationwide Remembrance

Volunteers from Magic City Civil Air Patrol and multiple groups prepared 1,080 veterans' graves, in Rosehill Memorial Cemetery this past Saturday for Wreaths Across America. Crosses were lined up and staked while the ground was still soft so wreaths could be placed later. Nationwide remembrance for fallen veterans is scheduled for December 17.

Squadron commander, 1st Lt. Jon McLemore said, "More sponsors," for wreaths are needed in the meantime. The cemetery remained 57 percent unfunded as of Sunday morning. Links for sponsoring a wreath for $15 or volunteering can both be found at facebook.com/MagCityCAP through November 30.

NORTHERN CELEBRATIONS

EMBRACING OUR NORTH DAKOTA LIFESTYLE

DISEASE AND DEER: EHD AND THE UPCOMING 2022 DEER GUN SEASON

Patricia Stockdill

The 2022 deer gun season marks the first time the state's gun hunters experienced a decrease in the number of available licenses since 2016.

And it's largely because of big impacts caused by a small biting insect – a reflection of just how hard a 2021 epizootic hemorrhagic disease (EHD) outbreak hit North Dakota's deer population. It's also the first time no whitetail licenses were issued in some units in more than 30 years.

With the deer gun season opening soon - Nov. 4 - 8,000 fewer hunters will be afield with several units, including those units along the Missouri River System, with a significant slash in the number of licenses.

For example, hunters looking over 2022 deer gun applications found a "zero" by the Antlered White-tailed Deer and Antlerless White-tailed Deer options in Unit 3C bordering either side of the Missouri River and Lake Oahe south of Bismarck-Mandan.

Weather – a severe drought – played a major role in the outbreak's severity by creating conditions ripe for the spread of the disease. The drought resulted in receding lake levels and drying wetlands, creating conditions ripe for midges, the tiny biting insects carrying EHD.

Deer congregated near whatever available water they had and that's where the midges were, infecting otherwise healthy deer. In addition, infected deer develop high fevers and they often seek water in an attempt to cool that fever.

EHD hit portions of North Dakota in 2021 where it hadn't been reported historically. Typically EHD impacts whitetails in southwestern North Dakota, which means they've also developed better immunity to the disease. This time it extended east of the Missouri River System.

With the drought creating conditions allowing EHD to spread beyond its typical area, it hit deer with little to no immunity. Otherwise healthy deer died. Even some mule deer and pronghorn died and they're less susceptible to EHD than whitetails.

Boaters and anglers reported dead deer. Upland and waterfowl hunters did, as well. So, too, did landowners harvesting crops last fall and rural residential dwellers. Weather also made it more challenging to determine EHD's impact, in large part because lack of snow cover early in 2022 made it difficult to complete winter aerial deer population surveys.

That meant hunter harvest surveys and field observations played a key role in helping the N.D. Game and Fish Department determine EHD's impact and the resulting number of available licenses for the 2022 season.

Another set of numbers also helped the state's wildlife managers determine the need for license reductions - information furnished by the public reporting observations of sick or dead deer. Along the Missouri River System and more heavily populated Bismarck-Mandan area as well as in northwestern North Dakota around Williston, that meant more people were reporting dead deer along the river and Lake Sakakawea, and in some cases, in yards and near farmsteads.

It was enough to warrant an opportunity for hunters in 22 units stretching across about one-half of North Dakota to turn back their deer gun tag before the 2021 season and more than 3,000 hunters did.

Despite the reduction in available licenses this year, North Dakotans still like to rifle hunt for deer – 73,700 hunters applied for one of the 64,200 available licenses, not counting gratis landowner licenses. Deer can be resilient creatures and when weather and habitat conditions allow, their population can rebound relatively quickly.

For those lucky deer gun license holder fortunate enough to draw a tag in 2022 a year after the major outbreak, it's still an opportunity to take rifle in hand and head into the Great North Dakota Outdoors.

And just maybe the outlook for the season will be better than what was anticipated just a few months ago.

Night at the Museum

CORY TOMPKINS-ELIASON

On the evening of October 22, I went to the final fundraiser of the year at the Dakota Territory Air Museum. As I was talking to this 'Army Air Corps bomber pilot' (who looked a lot like Ike Eisenhower, I thought), someone asked if they could take our photograph.

Because the costume for the evening was the Golden Age of Aviation, I was of course dressed out as the pioneer aviatrix Beryl Markham, the first woman to solo the Atlantic from East to West- (what is known as the hard way). Departing from Abington, England, and eventually landing in North America at Cape Breton, Nova Scotia. Her trip ended early due to a frozen fuel line. She had been flying during the night into 40 mph headwinds of heavy weather & made a forced landing into a peat bog with her Vega Gull aircraft. The year of her historic flight was 1936. She was later to author a book, West with the Night.

Now for the rest of the story: The 'bomber pilot' turned out to be none other than the Minot Air Force Base's Chaplain, Buddy Walker! In speaking to him I mentioned to him that my father, 1st Lt. Lonnie Tompkins, had been a Command Pilot of a B-17G during World War 2 in the European Theatre of Operations, stationed at Tunis, on the African continent and later in Ammendola, Italy. Sometime after the war, he became a construction supervisor for Halvorson Construction and built a B-52 hangar and the MAFB Chapel with the revolving altar.

I was delighted to learn that Chaplain Walker not only was the Chaplain at that very same Chapel but that he had cared enough about it to have it restored!

Meeting Chaplain Buddy Walker was the highlight of the evening for me. He is someone everyone should meet and a splendid ambassador for the U.S. Air Force!

He cares about the history of our Air Force and takes care of its future through his ministry.

Well done Chaplain Walker!

The Dakota Territory Air Museum is now closed for the year, with the re-opening set for May of 2023. The Dakota Territory Air Museum event, "A

Cory Tompkins-Eliason poses with Col. "Buddy" Walker, both dressed in period outfits to attend "A Night at the Museum," which is the last event of the 2022 season at the Dakota Territory Air Museum.

Night At The Museum," raised over $6,000.00 for the museum.

Cory Tompkins-Eliason is not only a local treasure but a dear family friend of our publisher Ted Bolton, who hopes to have her contribute more columns to this publication in the future.

All About Pets

Adopting a Furever Friend

Are you ready to add another member to your family? Adoption is a great way to go! According to the ASPCA, approximately 6.5 million companion animals enter U.S. animal shelters nationwide every year. Dogs make up about 3.3 million of those and cats make up about 3.2 million. While buying from a reputable breeder is one way to get a purebred animal with specific information about history and breed, there are many adoptable pets available that are just as obedient, fun, and unique. Adoption not only brings a loving companion into your home, but it gives the pet another chance at living a happy and healthy life.

There are many things to consider when adopting a pet. You must be ready to make the commitment, which can be about 10 to 15 years for dogs and up to 20 years long for cats. You also need to be able to meet all of your pet's needs, which includes being financially stable enough to pay for food, enrichment, vet bills, and medical emergencies, as well as making time to build a bond and exercise your pet as often as it needs, depending on the individual.

It's important to also have patience throughout the adoption process and to research what kind of pet will fit your lifestyle best. Finding the perfect companion is not always as easy as "love at first sight," and some pets take more time than others to acclimate to their new owners and homes. Often, rescues will begin to feel comfortable in their new home anywhere from three weeks to three months in, but it can vary. The initial time after bringing home your pet is imperative for creating a bond, but be sure not to rush the process. Always move at the pace your rescue pet feels most comfortable at. Shoes may be chewed, carpets may get messy, and couches may suffer, but having the companionship of a pet can be well worth it with the proper time, training, and love.

These local animal shelters work hard every day to find loving homes for the pets they bring in. If you're ready to find your furever friend, please consider contacting a shelter to adopt today!

B-21 bomber to be unveiled Dec. 2

SECRETARY OF THE AIR FORCE PUBLIC AFFAIRS

ARLINGTON, Va. (AFNS) -- The Air Force confirmed Oct. 20 it plans to reveal the B-21 Raider Dec. 2 during an unveiling ceremony hosted and sponsored by the Northrop Grumman Corporation at its production facilities in Palmdale, California.

The B-21 is a long-range, highly survivable, penetrating strike stealth bomber that will incrementally replace the B-1 and B-2 bombers, becoming the backbone of the U.S. Air Force bomber fleet.

"The unveiling of the B-21 Raider will be a historic moment for our Air Force and the nation," said Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. CQ Brown, Jr. "We last introduced a new bomber over 30 years ago. As we look to the threats posed by our pacing challenge; we must continue to rapidly modernize. The B-21 Raider will provide formidable combat capability across a range of operations in highly contested environments of the future."

The Department of the Air Force is investing in the aircraft's long-range strike capability as part of its seven Operational Imperatives as it develops the advanced communications, sensors, and a broad mix of weapons and supporting systems needed to deter our adversaries and prevail in combat.

We must invest in long-range strike in a highly contested environment by integrating the B-21 bomber with advanced communications, sensors, and a broad mix of weapons and supporting systems.

After unveiling, the B-21 program will continue its rigorous testing campaign with a combined team of professionals from the Air Force Test Center, Air Force Operational Test and Evaluation Center, and Northrop Grumman. Their work will verify performance and identify areas for improvement for the weapon system.

"The B-21 program is a powerful example of America's long experience with fielding advanced military technology through an innovative, adaptable and efficient defense industrial base," said Andrew Hunter, assistant secretary of the Air Force for Acquisition, Technology and Logistics. "The Air Force made the decision early in the life of the program to make the flight test aircraft production representative, which is paying dividends as we look towards first flight."

The B-21 weapon system is manufactured under the Air Force's contract with Northrop Grumman. It is designed with an open systems architecture, enabling rapid insertion of mature technologies, and allowing the aircraft to remain effective as threats evolve over time.

Shown is a B-21 Raider artist rendering graphic. The rendering highlights the future stealth bomber with Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., as the backdrop. Designed to perform long range conventional and nuclear missions and to operate in tomorrow's high end threat environment, the B-21 will be a visible and flexible component of the nuclear triad.

Tutor.com Visit to Minot Air Force Base

JOY-NICOLE SMITH
SCHOOL LIAISON PROGRAM MANAGER, GS-11
CHILD AND YOUTH EDUCATION SERVICES

After the release of the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) this week, there is much discussion on how to academically support students across the nation. As a military connected community, there are resources at our disposal to encourage the academic growth of students. One of these resources is Tutor.com.

Time is a precious commodity and often we sign up for many services. This can be redundant at times. However, signing up for Tutor.com is simple and easy. One of the first steps is to register by confirming eligibility and then signing up to create an account.

Once signed in, a "Connect Now" button is visible and readily available for one to engage with services provided by Tutor.com.

Next week, the School Liaison Office is privileged to host Tutor.com at Minot Air Force Base. This is an opportunity to connect our students and families to this resource. Currently, Tutor.com will visit North Plains Elementary, Dakota Elementary, and Memorial Middle School. This will provide our 500+ students with the tools to engage with the program.

Tutor.com is also a great resource for adult learners. For example, if you need an essay, resume, or paper reviewed, Tutor.com can have feedback and commentary within 12 hours. Learn more about what Tutor.com can offer at: <https://military.tutor.com/home>

Dragon Booster Club Holiday Party Planning/Volunteers

The Dragon Booster Club is looking for volunteers to help plan our upcoming Holiday Party. We intend to make this year's celebration the biggest and best yet! If you're interested, please show up with your ideas.

5 FSS Booster Club Volunteers

(Oct 28-30, 1800-2300 and 1800-midnight on Hallows Eve)

For Belle's Sake Rescue needs volunteers to help with our annual Small Town Terror Haunted House and Forest. Last year, the haunted house raised over $70K for surrounding non-profits and it is a FUN time!

We need volunteers to make it bigger and better as is our goal every year!

And the kicker, For Belle's Sake is going to donate half of the proceeds for each volunteer that signs up from their squadron to the booster club for their holiday party!

Location is Sawyer ND City Hall on main street. Small town, you can't get lost.

You can come whenever works for you and for every hour of time worked, your organization gets that cut of the proceeds. What this means is that the more volunteers = more MONEY your organization takes home!

This has the potential to make your unit's Holiday Party the best EVER SEEN!

We need 20-40 haunters each night during season. We provide food, beverages, and costumes unless you have your own, and you provide the fear! It is a TON of FUN!

Never Forget a Friend: Lil' Vendors Farmers Market

LAUREL-ELAINE SMITH, 10 YEARS OLD

Wow, it's Saturday, I'm selling at the Farmers Market! "Laurel, we need to pack up all of your bracelets. It'll also be cold, so you need to bring your hoody," Mommy said. I grabbed all the bracelets and my board. Quickly, I put on my jump suit and an extra layer of pants underneath since it was loose. When I went downstairs, I ate a quick meal and made sure I had everything. Mommy grabbed a table and two chairs, then we drove off. Hopefully I sell out today, or at least sell half of it.

When we arrived, it was packed! Last year, there were twenty to thirty people selling. Now there's almost fifty participating! We stationed on the other side of the market, which made me disappointed. Rather be at front when everyone sees you first and buy your item before the others. The exciting part was getting ready. As I unpacked, I put my "Funny Wears" on the left, "Fuzzy Sticks" in the middle, and "Nordic Wears" on the right. My business was named "Never Forget a Friend" because of my BFF [Best Friends Forever] in Germany, Leyla.

Leyla was my first BFF. We would both play, talk, listen, then play again. Both of us lived off base, went to the same school, and were in touch. Before I moved, we made rubber band bracelets. She also wanted to sell some bracelets while she was visiting the beach in Italy. Making bracelets took a sixth of our play dates or more. It was very heartbreaking when I moved, but when my mom told me about the kids' market, I wanted to join. So, I sold bracelets to connect people when they needed that memory and happiness.

The bell rang loud and clear, catching my attention. People started entering the Farmers Market with interest. Next to us was two kids selling beaded bracelets and other items with beads. I looked around, only seeing a couple people roaming around. It just started, I thought to myself.

"Hello there," said a lady with white hair. "Well, what are these here?" After explaining my story and my goods, she took a bracelet, one of the "Funny Wears" which were two dollars each. She also talked with Mommy. It also turned out that the lady also once caught a type of disease that had an effect of hair loss. This made me sad and mad. Could've God made a perfect world, or did humans cause these endless disasters and horror?

As I waited for more customers, my mom heard a creepy scream and asked, "What is that?" "I have no idea," replied the mom next door. "It's kind off creepy to me," Mommy continued. After a while, some teenagers came up and asked what we were selling. Of course, I introduced myself and my story. They were impressed by the flags I matched with each bracelet for the "Nordic Wears." My mom said, "I never knew there were that many Nordic countries out there." One teenager replied, "Yeah, there's a bunch of them alright." Continuing a little longer, they sadly didn't buy anything, at least I thought Mommy liked the talk.

A while later, it finally got warmer as more customers arrived. Including my little brother, sister, and Daddy. They also brought plenty of Chai Tea! Then the scream was heard again, this time next door! Turns out, it's called a death whistle, which was used in real life wars. It was shaped into skulls, dragons, and other figures.

"You can sell a little longer, seems more people are coming later," said the manager. To my surprise, a kid from my school came to buy a "Fuzzy Stick" for a dollar. Three other people before him took three "Nordic Wears," which costed them eighteen dollars in all.

The last customers were two girls who each wanted a "Nordic Wear." They only had ten dollars to give, even though they needed twelve. I took two dollars off so they could enjoy their gifts. Afterwards, I also promised a bracelet to one of the ladies working at the Farmers Market.

It was quite a day! I met many customers, had fun, and earned money. As we packed up, I gazed at the sky. Will this happen again next year, or will it evolve more and more? When we hopped into the car, I looked back. Most of the sellers packed up and left, a few were still staying to get more customers. I should continue this business with pride and bring others together. Ultimately, I learned everyone has different perspectives, outlooks, backgrounds, and experiences.

NOTES ON BEING SAFE

HALLOWEEN SAFETY FOR EVERYONE

ROD KRAUSE
5TH BOMB WING
OCCUPATIONAL SAFETY AND HEALTH MANAGER

Halloween is a cherished tradition but the excitement of the night can cause children to forget to be careful. Approximately four times as many children aged 5-14 are killed while walking on Halloween evening compared with other evenings of the year, and falls are a leading cause of injuries among children on Halloween. There is no real "trick" to making Halloween a real treat for the entire family. The major dangers are not from witches or spirits but rather from falls and pedestrian/car crashes. Many Halloween related injuries can be prevented if parents closely supervise school-aged children during trick-or-treat activities.

Parents can help prevent children from being injured at Halloween by following these safety tips from the American Academy of Pediatrics, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, and the National Safety Council.

Children should understand and follow these rules -

- Walk, do not run, from house to house.
- Cross streets at the corner, use crosswalks (where they exist), and do not cross between parked cars.
- Be reminded to look left, right, and left again before crossing the street.
- Wear clothing that is bright, reflective, and flame retardant.
- Use costume knives and swords that are flexible, not rigid or sharp. Parents and adults should -
- Make sure that an adult or an older responsible youth will be supervising the outing for children under age 12.
- Plan and discuss the route trick-or-treaters intend to follow. Know the names of older children's companions.
- Instruct your children to travel only in familiar areas and along an established route.

• Teach your children to stop only at houses or apartment buildings that are well-lit and never to enter a stranger's home.

• Prepare homes for trick-or-treaters by clearing porches, lawns, and sidewalks and by placing jack-o-lanterns away from doorways and landings.

• Motorists please keep in mind that many children will be out and many will be kids and will disregard the necessary pedestrian safety precautions therefore, they may cross in the middle of the block or run out into the streets unexpectedly. Drive with caution in the neighborhoods and pay attention. Drive slowly!

Remember, Halloween can be fun for everyone as long as we take care of each other and our children. Follow these simple tips and you are sure to have a fun and frightful Halloween.
